

Animal Effigy Pots Grid

Archaeologists call pottery painted or carved with animal designs or formed in the shape of animals "animal effigy pots." Ancient people of the Northwest decorated with salmon and bears; desert Indians were inspired by lizards and coyotes; Central Americans copied the colorful birds and snakes around them. Follow directions to find animals represented in American effigy pottery in the grid below.

Begin at the grid locations stated on the answer page and proceed in the map direction given. Write your answers on the answer page.

For example, to find the animal at 23 B North, start at row 23, column B. There you will find the letter "A." Then follow the grid "north" until you have spelled out an animal's name: "alligator."

Remember that some animal names are compound words, and some names contain two words. When you find all the animals, your list will be in alphabetical order.
